Paint 'Pollutes' Water Supply For Livestock

Paint dripping from a bridge on Route 138 has created another pollution problem in Pickaway County.

A contractor for the Ohio State Department of Highways finished painting the bridge over Little Yellow Bud creek

Wednesday morning. The paint crew departed, according to local farmers, leaving the water contaminated with red, yellow and green paint which had dripped from the span.

Four farms along the creek use the stream as a source of water for their livestock and are striving to keep the animals from drinking the contaminated water.

Frank Palmer, who operates a farm for Louise G. Bennett of Circleville, has 201 head of cattle at the main source of pollution. About a half mile downstream three other farms come into the picture. They use the stream as a water supply for cattle, pigs and sheep.

SAMPLES of water were taken and sent to the State for analysis.

A spokesman for the Ohio Department of Highways at Delaware reported the contractor had been notified and efforts were being made to break up the pollution.

Asbury Park Riot Damage Tops $1 Million

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Calm returned to the racially troubled resort city of Asbury Park today while black leaders discussed with the Negro population an agreement worked out during a marathon meeting.

Four days of racial disturbances left at least 165 persons injured—92 with shotgun pellet wounds—and at least 139 arrested.

Damage estimates are over the $1 million mark.

Mayor Joseph Mattice and Willie Hamm, a Rutgers University administrative assistant and an unsuccessful candidate for the city council, emerged from the closed meeting just before midnight Wednesday to announce that agreements had been reached.

Neither would reveal details, however.

Hamm, who said he represented the black community—40 per cent of the 20,000 persons who live here—chose to present the results of the discussions to the black populace before making them public. He would not say how they would be discussed.

Hamm entered the meeting, which included several other black leaders and the city council, with a list of 22 demands. They asked for better housing, more jobs, increased efforts at stopping use of narcotics and black representation on various civic boards.

River Pollution Will Continue

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Metropolitan Sewer District said Wednesday that repairs to a sewage treatment plant in a northeast Hamilton County will not be complete for 18 months and a million gallons of raw sewage will continue to be dumped into the Little Miami River daily.

Arthur D. Caster, sewer director, told the Hamilton County Commissioners, who had questioned the dumping, that he believed the sewage would not harm the river because of its rapid flow.

He said the Sycamore Treatment Plant at Remington, Ohio, was "grossly overloaded."

Air Strikes In Cambodia Drop Sharply

Cut Coincides With U.S. Pullout From Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. Air Force planes have flown more than 120 bombing sorties against targets in Cambodia since American troops were withdrawn back into South Vietnam last week, sources say.

This is a drastic cutback from the level of air attacks mounted in May and June while American and South Vietnamese infantrymen were scouring enemy base areas in Cambodia.

U. S. officials have said American warplanes will continue hitting enemy supplies and reinforcement routes through Cambodia, but will not provide direct air support for Cambodian troops except as a side effect of the interdiction bombings.

Sources said in the first seven days after the American troop withdrawal, U.S. fighter bombers flew nearly 100 sorties and big B-52's flew more than 20 against targets in Cambodia.

A sortie is one flight by one plane.

During the past week, American reconnaissance planes made nearly 90 flights over Cambodian territory, attempting to keep track of movements of enemy war material and soldiers.

By contrast, U.S. fighter bombers and B-52's made more than 5,400 individual attacks during May while photo planes were out on almost 800 sorties in that first month of the drive into Cambodia.

Air activity slackened considerably in June as the operation neared its end. There were about 3,600 attack sorties and more than 400 reconnaissance flights over Cambodia last month.

Information on how many of the 120 bombing sorties in the last week may have involved some air support for Cambodian forces was not available here.

Hocking Hills Park Seeks Fund Release

LOGAN, Ohio (AP) — The State Controlling Board will be asked Friday to release $4,424,651 for construction of a dining lodge and cabin complex at Hocking Hills State Park in Hocking County, State Sen. Harry L. Armstrong, R-Logan, said today.

He has been assigned as a Senate representative on the board during July and August. The Hocking park project will consist of a completely furnished dining lodge of heavy timber construction, a 240-car parking area at the lodge, 40 modern cabins and a maintenance building.

House Votes Today On War Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House moved today toward its first encounter with curbs on presidential action in Cambodia—an issue that tied up the Senate for almost two months.

Even before debate on the Cooper-Church amendment was under way, House doves lodged a complaint against the short notice given members on today's planned action.

The Cooper-Church amendment is attached to the foreign military sales bill which was passed by the Senate last month. Under plans outlined Wednesday, the first test of House sentiment hinged on a move by Chairman Thomas E. Morgan D-Pa., of the Foreign Affairs Committee to send the bill to a conference committee.

After a motion to instruct House conferees to accept the language of the Cooper-Church proposal, the strategy called for Morgan to move to table, or kill, that motion.

It was after 6:30 p.m. Wednesday when Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma announced the effort to send the bill to a conference with the Senate.

Albert's announcement followed a meeting of House strategists in the office of Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass. Bryce Harlow, counselor to President Nixon, reportedly attended the session.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., a leading dove, complained that more notice should be given on an issue of such importance.

President Nixon has said he would like the Senate-House conference committee to modify the Cooper-Church amendment. He emphasized the recognition of his constitutional duty to protect U.S. troops and authority to pay Asian nations, such as Thailand, to send troops and advisers to Cambodia.

Morgan and other likely House conferees on the bill want to go unimpaired to the conference with their Senate counterparts on the Foreign Relations Committee. The House members involved are opposed to Cooper-Church which is solidly supported by the senators.

House members involved in the conference also say the military sales bill should be continued, while the senators don't like the program through which U.S. weapons and other military equipment are sold to foreign nations.

The House people expect a long bargaining session with the Senate and one member said, "It may get acrimonious before it's over."

The Cooper-Church amendment, with an effective date of July 1, would bar the president from spending any funds without congressional consent for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia, sending military advisers to instruct Cambodian forces, providing air combat support to Cambodian forces, or financing others "to engage in any combat activity in support of Cambodian forces."

Boeing Wins Big Contract; Will Aid Seattle Economy

SEATTLE (AP) — Boeing Co. has won a major defense contract to test a new airborne warning system, giving a big boost to the ailing aerospace giant and to the depressed Seattle area.

The contract, announced Wednesday, is for the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS), which envisions a fleet of flying command posts to provide control of air-to-air and air-to-ground battles and to detect enemy bombers and missiles.

The losing bidder was McDonnell Douglas Corp., of Long Beach, Calif.

The initial award is $170 million. If Boeing proves the system, the contract would amount to more than $2 billion in the next five years.

More important locally, it was the first big contract won by Seattle-based Boeing in a long time. The company has been a bridesmaid several times in recent bidding, including the loss of the lucrative B1 bomber to North American Rockwell Corp. last month.

Douglas Graves, manager of Boeing's AWACS branch, said "the biggest benefit is a tremendous improvement in morale in the company and in the area."

Boeing, the Northwest's biggest employer, has been in the doldrums for two years. Engine trouble, unexpected high costs and lagging sales orders caused by a decline in air travel have plagued the company's 747 jumbo jet. Failure to win other major contracts added to the woes.

The firm has been forced to cut employment in the Seattle area from a peak of 101,400 in July 1968, to 55,400 at present. More than 25,000 have been laid off in 1970, with another 10,000 to go by the end of the year.

The Seattle-area unemployment level is about 10 per cent, twice the national average, housing starts are down about 40 per cent from a year ago, auto sales are down 35 per cent, and the hotel business is down 25 per cent.

Rogers Says Red Chinese Key To Indochina's Future

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China is the "key to the future of Indochina," Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today, and if Peking would "talk sensibly" about a settlement for the war, the Nixon administration thinks it "could work out a peaceful settlement very quickly."

Rogers also said in a television interview with NHK, the Japan Broadcasting Corp., that the U.S. military presence in Asia would be unnecessary if "Communist China would ever stop its belligerent attitude toward its neighbors."

Rogers did not indicate whether Washington has made any approaches to the Chinese concerning Indochina.

But he did say: "We have done everything we can to improve our relations with China. They have given some indication they might like to improve relations, but so far the progress has been very slow."

The secretary of state said he believes Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam, "cooperating and working together with other Asian nations, will be able to maintain their independence."

"And we think, too," he went on, "that Cambodia" because of its feeling of nationalism, because it has been invaded by the North Vietnamese—has a good chance of retaining a non-Communist government."

Asked how the withdrawal of 150,800 U.S. troops from South Vietnam by next May would affect the security of that part of Southeast Asia, Rogers said the South Vietnamese government now has about 1,034,000 troops, "well armed, well equipped, well trained, and we think that those troops, together with our air power and the remaining American troops and the troops from Thailand and South Korea, will be able to maintain the security of South Vietnam."

In a speech earlier today, Rogers said the United States will not allow differences with Japan in the commercial field to cause a rupture between the two countries.

"Japan has to play a part in the security of his part of the world," he told the U.S. Embassy staff. "Japan is in a position in the years ahead to play an important part in security, not only here, but in the world generally."

"The fact that we have had a breakdown in textile negotiations will not affect the revision of Okinawa to Japan."

HEW Pushes Welfare Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare will start enforcement action leading to a possible cutoff of federal aid to four of approximately 49 states in apparent violation of welfare regulations.

John D. Twinn, federal social and rehabilitation administrator, will announce compliance hearings today for Indiana, Nebraska, Arizona and California, department sources said.

Of almost a score of states brought to hearings since 1936, only one, Ohio, lost its federal welfare aid for a period.

The others quickly settled their differences with the government.

Twinn has expressed willingness to use fund termination to bring all states into compliance with federal regulations.

Four is the largest number of states ever called before hearing examiners at one time.

A number of the apparent violations in the four states cut to the heart of congressional provisions and Supreme Court decisions as long as three years ago enlarging the rights of public assistance recipients.

These include a 1969 court decision that abolished minimum residency requirements for welfare assistance; a 1968 ruling that struck down the so-called "man in the house" limitation on children's aid; and regulations requiring periodic adjustments of welfare payment standards and fair hearings before a loss or reduction of aid.

Compliance hearings are usually called only after negotiations break down between states and the federal government.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most members of Ohio's Congressional delegation were on the winning side as the House passed, 292-87, Wednesday a bill exempting joint newspaper operating arrangements from anti-trust laws.

61 Americans Killed In Action During Week

SAIGON (AP) — Military sources said late today the wreckage of a missing helicopter with Maj. Gen. George W. Casey, commander of the 1st Air Cavalry division, and six other Americans aboard has been located by searchers.

The sources said the helicopter apparently had crashed into a mountain Tuesday morning. There was no immediate confirmation that anyone had survived the crash, they added.

The wreckage of the UH1 helicopter which Casey himself was piloting, was spotted from the air by crewmen of one of the more than 60 aircraft that had taken part in a massive search.

As the search was being conducted, the U.S. Command announced that a total of 61 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest weekly total in 3½ years.

Informants said the location of the helicopter wreckage was being withheld because no ground troops had as yet reached the scene to inspect it and look for survivors.

The U.S. Command had no comment on the reports of the wreckage being found, saying only that the search and rescue operation was discontinued at nightfall and was to be resumed Friday morning.

The sources said there was no indication that enemy action was involved in the crash of the helicopter, which Casey, 48, of North Scituate, Mass., was flying to visit wounded members of his division at a medical facility in South Vietnam.

The location of the hospital, like other details concerning the site of the crash, were withheld for security reasons while the search continued.

Gen. Casey's UH1 Huey helicopter was last heard from at 10:10 a.m. Tuesday, and searchers have found neither the craft nor its occupants, the command said.

Quake Rocks Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A sharp earthquake shook the vacation lands of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands Wednesday and knocked down part of a 17th century home in the neighboring Dominican Republic.

Officials reported widespread panic but no extensive damage or casualties.

Five women aquanauts in a habitat 50 feet down in Great Lameshure Bay at St. John V.I., felt the jolt but went back to bed. The tremor hit at 12:50 a.m.

The five women were closer to the center of the earthquake than the residents of San Juan, many of whom rushed into the streets in night clothing.

The National Earthquake Center in Washington placed the center of the tremor at about 130 miles northeast of San Juan. The aquanauts are below the surface, in a research project called Tektite II, about 50 miles east of the Puerto Rican capital.

The Washington center said the quake reached an intensity of 6.2 on the Richter scale. The May 31 earthquake that killed 50,000 persons in Peru registered 7.8 on the scale.

But the center said the quake was 60 miles below the earth's surface—an unusual occurrence, the center said. Normal depth is about 20 miles, it added.

Dayton Man Unhurt In Plane Accident

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — John Cetinske, 29, of Dayton, escaped injury Wednesday when his light plane plunged into Indian Lake in northern Logan County.

Authorities said Cetinske tried to land in a parking area just east of Lakeview, but his craft hit a post and flipped into the lake.

UAW Sets Auto Talk Priorities

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers have added a new item—the financial security of laid-off members—to a list of priority items to be taken up with the industry next week in new contract talks.

Leonard Woodcock, newly elected president of the UAW, told a Wednesday news conference he was hopeful new wage pacts could be worked out without a strike.

"We fully intend to have a settlement with one of the Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—by Sept. 14 and if not, we will have to take some other action," he said.

Contracts with the Big Three run out Sept. 15. The contract with American Motors runs out a month later.

In a wide-ranging discussion of topics, Woodcock said the automakers overcharge for their cars, that dividends have risen twice as fast as payrolls since 1947, and that automakers can win the battle against foreign imports and still meet wage demands if they will make the effort.

Woodcock repeated the union's top three demands: —1. Optional retirement on a $500-a-month minimum pension after 30 years service regardless of age.

—2. Elimination of a limit on cost-of-living wage clauses.

—3. A substantial wage increase.

DMZ Still No-Man's-Land Of Vietnam War

By DANIEL De LUCE Associated Press Writer

The huge crimson banner with a gold star still flies at the 17th Parallel dividing Vietnam. Just as we remembered seeing it during a visit to North Vietnam in February.

The steel flagpole, 113 feet high, towers on the north bank of the Ben Hai River, where shell-pocked coastal Highway No. 1 ends at a broken bridge.

Five months ago, we stood at the base of the flagpole with North Vietnamese escorts. My wife took color photos. We heard artillery fire in the south. A jet flew past.

Men and women in conical hats worked in the neat rice fields of the northern portion of the Demilitarized Zone, where many of the craters from years of American bombing had been filled in.

We were told the North Vietnamese farmers felt reassured when they could look across the green fields to their flag, regardless of U.S. bombers overhead and guns firing in the distance.

The flag was never lowered. We did not imagine we would ever see it again.

Now, standing in a sandbag tower at Fire Base Alpha 2, we look north four miles across a bleak no-man's-land and glimpse the flag, a spot of red in the bluish haze.

We had been "inserted" at Alpha 2 by a South Vietnamese army helicopter. It left because of occasional incoming mortars, but it will come back in 15 minutes to "extract" us.

The only non-Vietnamese at the base are two Australian army warrant officers, Eric Burns and Owen Bell of Brisbane. They say newly arrived pilots seem to feel obliged to make at least one flight over or near the North Vietnam flag, hoping to see it shot down like the first flag years ago. It has been cited as an example of "how the other side disregards the Demilitarized Zone."

The little town of Con Thien on Highway 1 used to lie near the fire base. Con Thien vanished in the battles when the U.S. Marines were here.

In 1966, 1967, 1968, and much of 1969, this was known as Marineland. Then it went back into the hands of the South Vietnamese army. That army's crack 1st Division is holding the former U.S. front, and fighting as it has every year of the war, gallantly. It lost two battalions (Continued on Page 14)

Quake Rocks Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A sharp earthquake shook the vacation lands of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands Wednesday and knocked down part of a 17th century home in the neighboring Dominican Republic.

Officials reported widespread panic but no extensive damage or casualties.

Five women aquanauts in a habitat 50 feet down in Great Lameshure Bay at St. John V.I., felt the jolt but went back to bed. The tremor hit at 12:50 a.m.

The five women were closer to the center of the earthquake than the residents of San Juan, many of whom rushed into the streets in night clothing.

The National Earthquake Center in Washington placed the center of the tremor at about 130 miles northeast of San Juan. The aquanauts are below the surface in a research project called Teklite II, about 50 miles east of the Puerto Rican capital.

The Washington center said the quake reached an intensity of 6.2 on the Richter scale. The May 31 earthquake that killed 50,000 persons in Peru registered 7.8 on the scale.

But the center said the quake was 60 miles below the earth's surface—an unusual occurrence, the center said. Normal depth is about 20 miles, it added.

Dayton Man Unhurt In Plane Accident

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — John Cetinske, 29, of Dayton, escaped injury Wednesday when his light plane plunged into Indian Lake in northern Logan County.

Authorities said Cetinske tried to land in a parking area just east of Lakeview, but his craft hit a post and flipped into the lake.

Massive Power Failure Hits Wide Areas Of Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — An electrical fire at a power plant caused a major power outage in Cleveland, East Cleveland, Bratenahl and Cleveland Heights Wednesday night.

Parts of the affected area remained dark early Thursday. Suburban Bay Village also had a power failure when lightning struck power lines about 9:30 p.m.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. said a fire of undetermined origin at its Lake shore power plant knocked out power there and at seven substations connected with it. There also was an unexplained explosion that damaged underground cables on the city's East Side.

Police said there was looting at various East Side locations and in the downtown area following the power failure.

It was not known immediately how many CEI customers were affected, but a spokesman for the company said the outage was "massive."

Huron Road and St. Vincent Charity hospital refused to take emergency patients because of the power problem. The hospital switched to emergency power, but were unable to operate x-ray equipment.

Police rescued persons stuck in elevators in the Hippodrome Building in downtown Cleveland. The Cleveland Police Department's radio was off the air for 10 minutes before officers switched over to Municipal Light Plant power.

The early edition of the Cleveland Plain Dealer was delayed 28 minutes because of the power failure.

A Municipal Light Plant spokesman said some of its customers were affected by the power failure because they were tied into CEI service after Muni Light experienced power failures recently.

said. There was no indication whether enemy action was believed responsible for the disappearance.

The 48-year-old general, whose wife and five children live in North Scituate, Mass., was flying to a military medical facility to visit wounded members of his division. The area in which his aircraft is believed to have gone down was not made public for security reasons.

Six U.S. generals were killed in action earlier in the war, including two earlier this year. The command's weekly casualty summary reported 463 Americans wounded last week in addition to 61 killed. These figures brought the total American casualties in action that have been reported in the war to 42,919 killed, 282,966 wounded and 1,442 missing or captured.

It was the lowest weekly death toll since Dec. 3, 1966. South Vietnamese headquarters reported 371 government troops killed and 1,027 wounded in action last week, bringing government casualties since Jan. 1, 1960, to 110,175 killed and 231,631 wounded.

The two allied commands claimed 1,395 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed last week, and 655,145 since Jan. 1, 1961.

The U.S. Command also released American casualty totals for the eight-week Cambodian operation, reporting 354 Americans killed and 1,689 wounded between April 29 and June 30.

No major fighting was reported today in South Vietnam or Cambodia.

An OH6 observation helicopter was reported shot down and destroyed in Binh Dinh Province north of Saigon, with one American crewman wounded.

Although the Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh reported no fighting anywhere in his country today, sources at Thailand's defense ministry in Bangkok said Thai troops have taken up positions at strategic points on the Thai-Cambodian border as a result of "shooting incidents" between Thai border police and Communist forces in Cambodia.

Private graveside services will be 10 a.m. Friday at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Kingston, with the Rev. James Justice officiating.

White House Unveils Plan To Protect Environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed today reorganization plans to place environmental protection and management under two new agencies.

The plans, to take effect unless Congress vetoes them, would create an independent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) charged with the fight against all forms of environmental pollution, and a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) within the Commerce Department.

The White House said the proposed antipollution agency would have an estimated budget of $1.4 billion, and 5,650 employees.

The Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, although larger with some 12,000 employees, would have an estimated 1971 budget of some $270 million.

The reorganization cuts deeply into the functions of the Interior Department, and to a lesser but still major extent into the functions of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

EPA would take over from interior the Federal Water Quality Administration which directs efforts to combat water pollution.

From health, education and welfare, EPA would take the National Air Pollution Control Administration; solid waste, water hygiene, and some radiation safety functions; and the pesticides program of the Food and Drug Administration.

Environmental Quality, given the task of coordinating all government activities concerned with the environment, was created last January.

Logan Elm Board Approves Liberal Dress Policy

A new student dress code was adopted by the Logan Elm Board of Education Monday at their monthly meeting.

Under the new policy slacks may be worn at the option of the individual girl and boys' sideburns may extend to one inch below the bottom of the ear lobe. The board proclaimed "responsibility for students being well-groomed and neat in appearance is a three-fold accountability between student, school and parents."

The revisions also included a more liberal rule concerning skirt lengths. As long as the dress or skirt is reasonable and in good taste, it may be worn. The final decision rests in the hands of the administration. Last year's regulation set the length at four inches above the knee.

Board members agreed that nonsensical, comic, droll or bizarre styles of clothing was not to be considered proper attire. All other regulations of the past student dress code remain in force the same as last school term.

Receiving a favorable nod from the board of education for 1970-71 school year was authorization to sign a water contract with the Earnhart Water District recently approved by the state.

They tentatively adopted a $994,844.19 operating budget and $337,772.28 bond budget for the 1971 calendar year. Two copies of the proposed budget are on file in the office of the clerk at the high school for public inspection. An open hearing will be held Aug. 3 at 8 p.m. for all citizens in the area to attend.

Progress and inspection reports on the new exchange building indicate all areas of construction are on schedule. If no unexpected problems arise the building will be occupied in September according to initial plans. Access to the structure is on the west drive to the rear of the Logan Elm High School building.

It was the lowest weekly death toll since Dec. 3, 1966. South Vietnamese headquarters reported 371 government troops killed and 1,027 wounded in action last week, bringing government casualties since Jan. 1, 1960, to 110,175 killed and 231,631 wounded.

The two allied commands claimed 1,395 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed last week, and 655,145 since Jan. 1, 1961.

The U.S. Command also released American casualty totals for the eight-week Cambodian operation, reporting 354 Americans killed and 1,689 wounded between April 29 and June 30.

No major fighting was reported today in South Vietnam or Cambodia.

An OH6 observation helicopter was reported shot down and destroyed in Binh Dinh Province north of Saigon, with one American crewman wounded.

Although the Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh reported no fighting anywhere in his country today, sources at Thailand's defense ministry in Bangkok said Thai troops have taken up positions at strategic points on the Thai-Cambodian border as a result of "shooting incidents" between Thai border police and Communist forces in Cambodia.

White House Unveils Plan To Protect Environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed today reorganization plans to place environmental protection and management under two new agencies.

The plans, to take effect unless Congress vetoes them, would create an independent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) charged with the fight against all forms of environmental pollution, and a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) within the Commerce Department.

The White House said the proposed antipollution agency would have an estimated budget of $1.4 billion, and 5,650 employees.

The Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, although larger with some 12,000 employees, would have an estimated 1971 budget of some $270 million.

The reorganization cuts deeply into the functions of the Interior Department, and to a lesser but still major extent into the functions of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

EPA would take over from Interior the Federal Water Quality Administration which directs efforts to combat water pollution.

From health, education and welfare, EPA would take the National Air Pollution Control Administration; solid waste, water hygiene, and some radiation safety functions; and the pesticides program of the Food and Drug Administration.

Apparent Suicide Seen In Columbus
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A woman who died when she drove a car into the Scioto River Wednesday has been identified as Melinda Gordon, 20, of Westerville.

The body was pulled from the river about 90 minutes after the apparent suicide. Police had trouble identifying the woman because she was nude and there was no identification for her in the car.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Presiding Common Pleas Judge Myron B. Gessman said today a special session of the Franklin County Grand Jury will be called for July 20. Laird Announces Speedup In Viet Troop Cutbacks
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird today announced a speed-up in the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

Laird told a news conference that more than 50,000 American servicemen will be withdrawn by Oct. 15.

He said U.S. forces in Vietnam will go below the 384,000 troop ceiling projected by President Nixon for mid-October.

"We will be at that troop ceiling on Oct. 15," the defense secretary said.

He declined to say how many additional American troops will be out of Vietnam by that date. Asked whether this speed-up means that more than 150,000 Americans will be withdrawn by spring, as Nixon has pledged, Laird said, "We will meet or beat that, too."

Logan Elm Board Approves Liberal Dress Policy

A new student dress code was adopted by the Logan Elm Board of Education Monday at their monthly meeting.

Under the new policy slacks may be worn at the option of the individual girl and boys' sideburns may extend to one inch below the bottom of the ear lobe. The board proclaimed "responsibility for students being well-groomed and neat in appearance is a three-fold accountability between student, school and parents."

The revisions also included a more liberal rule concerning skirt lengths. As long as the dress or skirt is reasonable and in good taste, it may be worn. The final decision rests in the hands of the administration.

Last year's regulation set the length at four inches above the knee.

Board members agreed that nonsensical, comic, droll or bizarre styles of clothing was not to be considered proper attire. All other regulations of the past student dress code remain in force the same as last school term.

Receiving a favorable nod from the board of education for 1970-71 school year was authorization to sign a water contract with the Earnhart Water District recently approved by the state.

They tentatively adopted a $994,844.19 operating budget and $337,772.28 bond budget for the 1971 calendar year. Two copies of the proposed budget are on file in the office of the clerk at the high school for public inspection. An open hearing will be held Aug. 3 at 8 p.m. for all citizens in the area to attend.

Progress and inspection reports on the new exchange building indicate all areas of construction are on schedule. If no unexpected problems arise the building will be occupied in September according to initial plans. Access to the structure is on the west drive to the rear of the Logan Elm High School building.

Accepted at the meeting were

Garnishment Law Confusion Eyed By Municipal Courts

Israeli Ship Loads Guns

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) -- The Israeli freighter Etrog is expected to leave the Port of Cleveland today to take a load of 24 M109 self-propelled howitzers to Israel.

Norton Lilly & Co., a steamship firm which handled shipping arrangements, said departure times and other details were confidential.

The entire loading operation under the watchful eyes of a heavily armed private police guard was supposed to have been confidential, but word leaked out, and newsmen were on hand to count the howitzers going aboard Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Alian Division of General Motors Corp. said the howitzers could be part of a U.S.-Israeli arms deal made last year, but he also declined to give any details.

The self-propelled weapons fire 155mm shells and carry .50-caliber machine guns. They were built at a U.S. Army tank plant in suburban Brook Park which is operated by the Allison Division.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) -- Municipal courts in Ohio are doing their own thing to the possible confusion of debtors caught in a web of garnishment laws.

Courts face the dilemma of switching standards of garnishment procedure from state to federal and back to state laws.

On July 1, a new federal garnishment law superseded state garnishment laws in states where a lot of the debtor would be improved. Ohio was such a state.

But Ohio has a new garnishment law that goes into effect Sept. 16. It will be an improvement over federal standards.

Garnishment is a court proceeding initiated by a creditor against a debtor. The creditor seeks to attach the debtor's wages before the employer pays him.

Some municipal courts have developed their own guidelines to make operations smoother between July 1 and Sept. 16.

In Cuyahoga County, municipal courts are using an interim law that is a combination of the old state law and the new federal law. The courts will use this until the new state law becomes effective in September.

Franklin County Municipal Court judges have approved a court order moving the effective date of the new state law to July 1.

Although the order sidesteps possible confusion, it has produced a legal question, which is being examined by the Ohio attorney general.

Hamilton County Municipal Courts chose to use the new federal law until September while officials of Dayton Municipal Court are meeting this week to decide what procedure they will follow.

Walter Russell, administrative assistant in Cleveland Municipal Court, said the Cleveland Office of the U.S. Department of Labor, has approved the interim law for Cuyahoga County. "The law is a fairly decent formulation that complies with the federal law and uses the state law whenever it is more beneficial to the debtor," Russell said.

The federal law limits the amount of garnishment to 25 per cent of an employee's disposable earnings and exempts $208 a month from the garnishment proceedings.

The law prohibits an employer from firing an employee because of garnishment action.

The new Ohio law stipulates that not more than 17 1/2 per cent of a person's total wages may be garnished and exempts $280 of the monthly wage from garnishment.

Gilligan Speaker In Monroe County

WOODSFIELD, Ohio (AP) -- Monroe Countians are learning first-hand what "years of neglect by the state government can mean to an area," Democratic gubernatorial candidate John J. Gilligan said Wednesday.

Stopping here on a three-week campaign swing, Gilligan said that despite the state's years of slogging about industrial development, no new industry was in sight for this area. "Your county doesn't even have a hospital," he noted.

An Obligation

Americans are not a selfish people, but at times we are thoughtless. Take a look at the tens of thousands of grievously wounded servicemen brought back from Vietnam for treatment and rehabilitation in Veterans Hospitals.

Many of these men are amputees or suffer from other serious impairments which will remain with them the rest of their lives. Many of them are not receiving the rehabilitative treatment and personal attention they need to regain usefulness.

Manpower and equipment shortages in some of the hospitals have brought patient care down to a level bordering on a national scandal. The men who fought in Vietnam and came home as casualties deserve the best in care and treatment.

These men represent the one part of the war which ought to bring unanimity in public response. Nothing which needs to be done for them should be left undone any longer.

That is a small measure of concern for the price they have paid.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Are advertising campaigns successful? Ad agencies will waste no words in telling you they are. They won't be defensive about it either; they'll consider your question absurd.

But one astute researcher, a professor of advertising no less, undertook extensive research in seeking an answer to this question:

"To what extent do advertising agencies know whether or not their campaigns are successful?" To reach a conclusion he analyzed "proofs of success" listed by 40 ad agencies for 135 campaigns. And he decided:

"The answer is that most of the advertising agencies do not know whether their campaigns are successful or not."

An even more provocative implication was suggested—that most agencies which claimed proof of success did not even state, and probably didn't know, what the objectives were for determining success.

These are among the conclusions reached by Stewart Henderson Britt, a psychologist at Northwestern University as well as a graduate school professor of marketing and advertising, in an article for the Journal of Advertising Research.

Britt is also a former agency executive, and for many years has been an advertising consultant. And so his curiosity was aroused when he came upon a compendium of "successful advertising campaigns."

To measure effectiveness, Britt decided, the programs would have to declare their objectives and then prove they met them. But, he found:

—In 133 of the 135 cases, the agencies failed to state their objectives in quantifiable, or measurable, terms.

—Many of the agencies took credit for increased sales without proving that the sales resulted from advertising and not from factors, such as price, competition, newness of product and so on.

—In 21 instances, the advertising audience wasn't even identified.

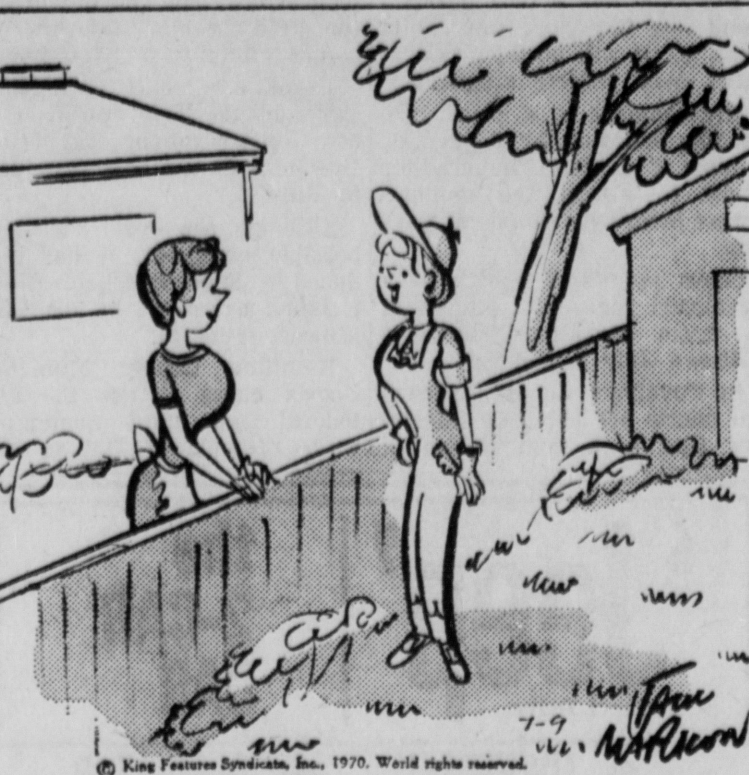

—In 93 of the 135 cases the so-called proofs weren't directly related to the stated objectives. Britt gives this example:

"Campaign objectives: To convince mothers that — is the best fruit drink they can serve their children: Because it is good for them; because it is the best-tasting of all fruit drinks."

"Proof of success: Despite the aggressive competition from the scores of competitive brands of fruit drinks, — has not only held its position but shown consistent improvement in sales year after year."

Britt's point: "Although the campaign purportedly was intended to convince mothers of the quality of the drink for children, the statement of proof of success indicates no attempt to measure any awareness of the product by mothers."

There's a well-known Civil War buff in Richmond who maintains stoutly that every time the redoubtable General Stonewall Jackson became involved in a violent battle, he sucked on a lemon to calm his nerves. "Where," asked a skeptic, "did the General come by this lemon?" "Nothing to it," pooh-poohed the narrator. "He just went to an expensive restaurant and ordered tea—with cream."

John Galbreath, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and owner of two Kentucky Derby winners, says, "There's one thing nicer about winning a Kentucky Derby than rooting your ball team to a world championship. You don't have to feed the horse that won any more the day after the race than you fed him the day before the race—and, furthermore, you don't have to sign him up for the next year!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is Meniere's disease a dangerous kind of dizziness and how does it differ from other kinds of dizziness? Does it mean that a tumor of the brain is developing?

Mr. E. J. D., No. Carolina Dear Mr. D.: I have written many times about Meniere's disease and still I am surprised by the number of letters that come to me, all expressing anxiety about it. I simply do not understand why the name Meniere calls forth so much concern when, in reality, the disease occurs only rarely.

Perhaps I can clarify something that seems to be confusing to many readers. The center of balance, or equilibrium, lies deep within your inner ear. Here three tiny, semicircular canals contain fluid that shifts with every position of your head. Delicate hair cells within this area known as the labyrinth, pick up the flow of this fluid and then relay a message to your brain. The brain now makes an adjustment of the body position to keep you in balance.

This highly sensitive balance mechanism is one of the most remarkable in your body. The slightest rotation of the head, bending to the floor, turning while dancing and shifting from a flat to an upright position are, within a fraction of a second, compensated for by this mechanism and keep you from being off balance.

Let me repeat that the center of balance lies in the inner ear. This does not mean that, when dizziness is present, it is necessarily caused by disease within the inner ear itself.

Your balance can be upset by high or low blood pressure, allergies, excessive intake of fluid and salt, eye disorders, sudden changes of position, by side effects of drugs, by narrowing of the blood vessels and by ear infections. Tobacco, coffee and alcohol can also affect your inner ear. All kinds of motion in an automobile, plane or on a ship can cause imbalance. And this is only a partial list of the factors that may affect your inner ear.

Dizziness and Meniere's disease are not the same. Dizziness of a special kind, however, can be one of the symptoms of Meniere's disease. Even mentioning other symptoms of Meniere's would immediately induce in some people another type of anxiety.

Occasional dizzy spells do not mean that a tumor of the brain is developing. To live in fear of this does you a great injustice.

Readers must be cautioned to be careful when they describe a symptom to their doctor. Many say they have had a dizzy spell when, in reality, they have had a headache, a sense of faintness.

Dizziness or vertigo is a sudden severe incapacitating feeling that objects are moving while you are standing still. Sometimes, the reverse occurs and objects appear to be standing still while you are turning. This is true dizziness. To avoid confusion on relating a history to a doctor, do not assume that a headache, faintness, light-headedness or blurring of the eyes is dizziness. It is not. There are many neurological, hearing, eye and balance tests that can distinguish the rare dizziness of Meniere's disease from all the other forms.

Understanding, not punishment, invites better communication between yourself and your children.

Motor Vehicle Registrations Show Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Moderate gains over last year have been recorded in motor vehicle registrations and license revenues for the first four months of the registration year, State Auditor Roger Cloud reported today.

He said for the registration year to date—March through June — total licensed vehicles were 5,635,363, up 10,963, and license fees totaled $100,274,782, up $2,062,271 over last year.

Cloud said the 4,527,345 passenger car registrations represented a drop of $3924 from last year.

The decline was off-set by gains in other classifications, he said.

Borough Has No Need For Clerical Supplies

DAVENTRY, England (AP) — The Borough of Daventry doesn't plan to buy any type writer ribbons, carbon paper or duplicator stencils for some time. A recently resigned borough official bought 19.268 pounds (46.483 dollars) worth of such supplies in the last three years. Independent auditors calculated that at the present rate the borough would use up its supplies in 125 years.

A Byrd-Buckley Margin?

F. Clifton White, the gifted campaign manager who recently helped Anderson Carter win an astonishing victory in the Republican Senatorial primary in New Mexico, will be the man at the throttle for James Buckley, the Conservative Party nominee for United States Senator from New York, and if President Richard Nixon's political advisers still have the sense they were born with they should be cavorting with joy all over the South Lawn of the White House.

The reason is that Nixon, in his to-the-death battle for his foreign policy, needs philosophical support in the U.S. Senate far more than he needs a purely mathematical margin of nominal Republicans. White was a Goldwater man in 1964, a Ronald Reagan man in 1968, but this is water over the dam. The point is that he is a Nixon man now on all the issues that count. And Jim Buckley, whom White has taken on as his tiger to defeat the anti-Nixon Republican nominee for Senator, Charles ("Flip-Flop") Goodell, is the only Nixon Senatorial candidate on view in the Empire State.

The Buckley candidacy, which will be run with real professional smoothness by White, is all the more important to Richard Nixon because of what has recently happened in Virginia.

The Virginia situation is comparable to the New York State situation in every important way. There will be three Senatorial candidates in Virginia this fall — the incumbent Democratic Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr., who is running as an Independent; a Republican nominee, Ray Garland, and a Democratic candidate who is still to be named. Garland, who was forced on the Virginia Republicans by Governor Linwood Holton in an incredibly bone-headed move, cannot possibly win. (The White House tried to tell Holton that.) But Garland could hurt Harry Byrd, who is needed by Richard Nixon in the Senate simply because Byrd, though he has become disillusioned like virtually every American about the Far East, is a thoroughly decent man who would never permit his country to accept a dishonorable defeat.

If Byrd is re-elected despite the opposition of the Holton-Garland Republicans (a minority in their own party if the non-registered types are included), he may not vote with the Republicans to organize the Senate. After all, he has his old friends among the Southern conservative Democrats who have seniority in more than one big committee. However, he would be on Nixon's side in crucial votes, and that is what will count.

It would be interesting, come November, if a Byrd-Buckley duo proves to be the margin that gives Richard Nixon a 51-49 philosophical domination of a Senate which, as presently constituted, has been mauling him badly. Naturally, Nixon can't admit in public to preferring philosophy to party. But if he wants to succeed in his efforts to achieve an orderly extrication from Indochina that will leave non-Communist governments in power in that part of the world, he had better pray every night for both Buckley and Byrd.

A recent poll in Virginia gives Byrd 44 per cent of the vote, which is enough to win against a split field. In New York State, a poll shows Goodell ahead with 44 per cent, the Democratic candidate Richard Ottinger second with 23 per cent, and Jim Buckley third with 26 per cent. Two per cent were undecided. But the campaign hasn't started yet. Ottinger must strive to run to the left of Goodell (it will take some doing) to retain the New York City vote, which means that Buckley will be facing two liberals at a time that Republican conservatives are angry at the Goodell repudiation of his old voting record in the House of Representatives. Meanwhile, Ottinger will be playing up the Goodell turncoat business for all it is worth. The ethnic bag will help Buckley: some liberal Jews who might have voted for Goodell if Ted Sorensen had been the Democratic nominee will surely vote for Ottinger.

Meanwhile Cliff White will be finding his emotions grabbed as they have never been grabbed before by the job of putting Buckley over. Cliff, a former political science teacher at Ithaca College and Cornell, is an upstate New Yorker with a great loyalty to his region. He doesn't like Goodell's shift, which he interprets as desertion of the homeland, one little bit. And he finds in Jim Buckley, a registered Republican, a profoundly congenial tiger. With enough money to pay for TV, and with Cliff White traveling the State, Jim Buckley may yet save New York for the honor that Nixon needs far more than he needs the nominal Republican Goodell.

An Obligation

Americans are not a selfish people, but at times we are thoughtless. Take a look at the tens of thousands of grievously wounded servicemen brought back from Vietnam for treatment and rehabilitation in Veterans Hospitals.

Many of these men are amputees or suffer from other serious impairments which will remain with them the rest of their lives. Many of them are not receiving the rehabilitative treatment and personal attention they need to regain usefulness.

Manpower and equipment shortages in some of the hospitals have brought patient care down to a level bordering on a national scandal. The men who fought in Vietnam and came home as casualties deserve the best in care and treatment.

These men represent the one part of the war which ought to bring unanimity in public response. Nothing which needs to be done for them should be left undone any longer.

That is a small measure of concern for the price they have paid.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Are advertising campaigns successful? Ad agencies will waste no words in telling you they are. They won't be defensive about it either; they'll consider your question absurd.

But one astute researcher, a professor of advertising no less, undertook extensive research in seeking an answer to this question:

"To what extent do advertising agencies know whether or not their campaigns are successful?" To reach a conclusion he analyzed "proofs of success" listed by 40 ad agencies for 135 campaigns. And he decided:

"The answer is that most of the advertising agencies do not know whether their campaigns are successful or not."

An even more provocative implication was suggested—that most agencies which claimed proof of success did not even state, and probably didn't know, what the objectives were for determining success.

These are among the conclusions reached by Stuart Henderson Britt, a psychologist at Northwestern University as well as a graduate school professor of marketing and advertising, in an article for the Journal of Advertising Research.

Britt is also a former agency executive, and for many years has been an advertising consultant. And so his curiosity was aroused when he came upon a compendium of "successful advertising campaigns."

To measure effectiveness, Britt decided, the programs would have to declare their objectives and then prove they met them. But, he found:

—In 133 of the 135 cases, the agencies failed to state their objectives in quantifiable, or measurable, terms.

—Many of the agencies took credit for increased sales without proving that the sales resulted from advertising and not from factors, such as price, competition, newness of product and so on.

—In 21 instances, the advertising audience wasn't even identified.

—In 93 of the 135 cases the so-called proofs weren't directly related to the stated objectives. Britt gives this example:

"Campaign objectives: To convince mothers that — is the best fruit drink they can serve their children: Because it is good for them; because it is the best-tasting of all fruit drinks."

"Proof of success: Despite the aggressive competition from the scores of competitive brands of fruit drinks, — has not only held its position but shown consistent improvement in sales year after year."

Britt's point: "Although the campaign purportedly was intended to convince mothers of the quality of the drink for children, the statement of proof of success indicates no attempt to measure any awareness of the product by mothers."

There's a well-known Civil War buff in Richmond who maintains stoutly that every time the redoubtable General Stonewall Jackson became involved in a violent battle, he sucked on a lemon to calm his nerves. "Where," asked a skeptic, "did the General come by this lemon?" "Nothing to it," pooh-poohed the narrator. "He just went to an expensive restaurant and ordered tea—with cream."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is Meniere's disease a dangerous kind of dizziness and how does it differ from other kinds of dizziness? Does it mean that a tumor of the brain is developing?

Mr. E. J. D., No. Carolina Dear Mr. D.: I have written many times about Meniere's disease and still I am surprised by the number of letters that come to me, all expressing anxiety about it. I simply do not understand why the name Meniere calls forth so much concern when, in reality, the disease occurs only rarely.

Perhaps I can clarify something that seems to be confusing to many readers. The center of balance, or equilibrium, lies deep within your inner ear. Here three tiny, semicircular canals contain fluid that shifts with every position of your head. Delicate hair cells within this area known as the labyrinth, pick up the flow of this fluid and then relay a message to your brain. The brain now makes an adjustment of the body position to keep you in balance.

This highly sensitive balance mechanism is one of the most remarkable in your body. The slightest rotation of the head, bending to the floor, turning while dancing and shifting from a flat to an upright position are, within a fraction of a second, compensated for by this mechanism and keep you from being off balance.

Let me repeat that the center of balance lies in the inner ear. This does not mean that, when dizziness is present, it is necessarily caused by disease within the inner ear itself.

Your balance can be upset by high or low blood pressure, allergies, excessive intake of fluid and salt, eye disorders, sudden changes of position, by side effects of drugs, by narrowing of the blood vessels and by ear infections. Tobacco, coffee and alcohol can also affect your inner ear. All kinds of motion in an automobile, plane or on a ship can cause imbalance. And this is only a partial list of the factors that may affect your inner ear.

Dizziness and Meniere's disease are not the same. Dizziness of a special kind, however, can be one of the symptoms of Meniere's disease. Even mentioning other symptoms of Meniere's would immediately induce in some people another type of anxiety.

Occasional dizzy spells do not mean that a tumor of the brain is developing. To live in fear of this does you a great injustice. Readers must be cautioned to

A Byrd-Buckley Margin?

F. Clifton White, the gifted campaign manager who recently helped Anderson Carter win an astonishing victory in the Republican Senatorial primary in New Mexico, will be the man at the throttle for James Buckley, the Conservative Party nominee for United States Senator from New York, and if President Richard Nixon's political advisers still have the sense they were born with they should be cavorting with joy all over the South Lawn of the White House.

The reason is that Nixon, in his to-the-death battle for his foreign policy, needs philosophical support in the U.S. Senate far more than he needs a purely mathematical margin of nominal Republicans. White was a Goldwater man in 1964, a Ronald Reagan man in 1968, but this is water over the dam.

The point is that he is a Nixon man now on all the issues that count. And Jim Buckley, whom White has taken on as his tiger to defeat the anti-Nixon Republican nominee for Senator, Charles ("Flip-Flop") Goodell, is the only Nixon Senatorial candidate on view in the Empire State.

The Buckley candidacy, which will be run with real professional smoothness by White, is all the more important to Richard Nixon because of what has recently happened in Virginia.

The Virginia situation is comparable to the New York State situation in every important way. There will be three Senatorial candidates in Virginia this fall — the incumbent Democratic Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr., who is running as an Independent; a Republican nominee, Ray Garland, and a Democratic candidate who is still to be named. Garland, who was forced on the Virginia Republican ticket by Governor Linwood Holton in an incredibly bone-headed move, cannot possibly win. (The White House tried to tell Holton that.) But Garland could hurt Harry Byrd, who is needed by Richard Nixon in the Senate simply because Byrd, though he has become disillusioned like virtually every American about the Far East, is a thoroughly decent man who would never permit his country to accept a dishonorable defeat. If Byrd is re-elected despite the opposition of the Holton-Garland Republicans (a minority in their own party if the non-registered types are included), he may not vote with the Republicans to organize the Senate. After all, he has his old friends among the Southern conservative Democrats who have seniority in more than one big committee. However, he would be on Nixon's side in crucial votes, and that is what will count.

It would be interesting, come November, if a Byrd-Buckley duo proves to be the margin that gives Richard Nixon a 51-49 that gives Richard Nixon a 51-49 philosophical domination of a Senate which, as presently constituted, has been mauling him badly. Naturally, Nixon can't admit in public to preferring philosophy to party. But if he wants to succeed in his efforts to achieve an orderly extrication from Indochina that will leave non-Communist governments in power in that part of the world, he had better pray every night for both Buckley and Byrd.

A recent poll in Virginia gives Byrd 44 per cent of the vote, which is enough to win against a split field. In New York State, a poll shows Goodell ahead with 44 per cent, the Democratic candidate Richard Ottinger second with 28 per cent, and Jim Buckley third with 26 per cent. Two per cent were undecided. But the campaign hasn't started yet. Ottinger must strive to run to the left of Goodell (it will take some doing) to retain the New York City vote, which means that Buckley will be facing two liberals at a time that Republican conservatives are angry at the Goodell repudiation of his old voting record in the House of Representatives. Meanwhile, Ottinger will be playing up the Goodell turncoat business for all it is worth. The ethnic bag will help Buckley: some liberal Jews who might have voted for Goodell if Ted Sorensen had been the Democratic nominee will surely vote for Ottinger.

Meanwhile Cliff White will be finding his emotions grabbed as they have never been grabbed before by the job of putting Buckley over. Cliff, a former political science teacher at Ithaca College and Cornell, is an upstate New Yorker with a great loyalty to his region. He doesn't like Goodell's shift, which he interprets as desertion of the homeland, one little bit. And he finds in Jim Buckley, a registered Republican, a profoundly congenial tiger. U.S. Drivers Are Safer, NSC Reports

CHICAGO (AP) — There are more cars and more drivers on U.S. highways than there were a year ago but the highway fatality rate for the first five months of 1970 decreased to 20,500 from 20,860 for the same period of last year.

"It's not enough to say merely that this year's drivers are more careful," said Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council.

"We have to examine the entire road, vehicle and driver situation. For instance, we know there is a much lower death rate on the limited access, safety-engineered interstate highway system.

"Automobiles built today are safer in many ways than the cars they are gradually replacing. Motorists are being required by law to drive more responsibly as illustrated by efforts to get drinking drivers and other unqualified persons off the road."

Pyle said if the rate of fatalities for the first five months continues, "we can hope to experience several hundred fewer traffic deaths than last year. This may happen in spite of the fact that there are at least two million more motor vehicles and about two million more licensed drivers on the roads today."

The 1969 highway toll was 56,400 lives.

Dental Problems Of Americans Reach Epic Proportions

Editor's note: Collectively speaking, America's mouth is in horrible shape. As a nation, we have 800 million cavities. And 20 million of our people are toothless. This article, the fourth in a series on man's common ills, reports what's being done to prevent or repair these dental ravages.

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Late one night, Dr. Milton Hodosh of Brown University was driving pell-mell through downtown Providence when a police cruiser, siren screaming, flagged him down.

"What's the big rush, mister?" demanded the policeman. "Well, you see, officer," said Hodosh, "I've got this baboon in the trunk..."

"You've got a WHAT in the trunk?" interrupted the policeman.

"Only a baboon," replied dentist Hodosh, by this time nervously opening the trunk where a sleepy 80-pound baboon lay with his hairy head jutting from a zippered case.

"I'm carrying him from the university to my own lab across town. He's been tranquilized, but the drug's wearing off, and these baboons can be awfully vicious when they're entirely awake — so I gotta hurry so I can get him into a cage. I'm experimenting with plastic teeth in baboons."

"I thought I'd seen everything on this job—but this bats 'em all!" said the officer. "Drive on, Doc."

The late night dash, related by Hodosh, is symbolic of the race against time, bacteria and other problems being run by dental researchers trying to stem, or better repair, the ravages on the collective American mouth.

Dentally speaking the nation is in horrible shape:

—Dental decay affects up to 98 per cent of the population and is the most common physical defect among children and adolescents. There are currently an estimated 800 million unfilled, decayed teeth—cavities—in the U.S. population. The average child, on reaching school age, has three decayed teeth. The average 15-year-old has 11.

—An estimated 20 million Americans have lost all their natural teeth because of periodontal disease, a mysterious gum and tooth-socket malady popularly known as "pyorrhea."

Of the 90 million U.S. adults who retain some of their teeth, 67 million have some sign of the disease and 20 million of them have reached the advanced stages.

—At least one-fifth, and perhaps as many as one-half, of U.S. school children have, or will develop, malocclusions—improper alignment of teeth—severe enough to require treatment by dental specialists called "orthodontists."

At a cost of up to $2,000 per child, the current annual bill for orthodontic care is approximately $275 million. But that represents "less than 10 per cent of the estimated total public need," according to officials of the National Dental Institute.

It is against such formidable foes that dental researchers are concentrating their efforts.

For example, Dr. Hodosh and his associates at Brown University and at Tufts Dental School in Boston have been experimenting for more than a decade, both in baboons and humans, with artificial whole-tooth implants made of a special mixture of plastic and specially treated human bone chips.

The aim is to perfect immediate replacements for individual extracted teeth or teeth lost from gum disease.

The husky 47-year-old Hodosh, once a champion college javelin thrower, holds other "championships"—including many baboon implants that now have survived like natural teeth for periods up to ten years; and an "upper right bicuspid" implant in a woman that has already gone 12½ years with no apparent signs of rejection.

Hodosh said he and his team are now preparing for the first large-scale human trials of the technique. The three-year project, supported by the U.S. Public Health Service's National Dental Institute will involve implants in at least 150 people.

Bold and imaginative research is underway elsewhere on other approaches to combatting the nation's multiple and devastating dental problems.

The efforts range from studies aimed at developing possibly within ten years a vaccine or drug-and-dietary combination for preventing tooth decay to the use of bone grafts taken from a patient's hip to replace parts of jawbone destroyed by pyorrhea.

They also include experimental antidecay use of laser beams, perhaps the most powerful form of light in the universe, as a conceivable means of strengthening teeth against decay; employment of ultrasonic devices for literally vibrating germ-ridden tartar from teeth; and a plastic paint, applied like nail-polish to the biting and grinding surfaces of teeth, to provide armor-plate protection against bacterial invasion of certain vulnerable areas.

Also:

"Fluoride gel" applied to the teeth of children for a few minutes a day several times a week by means of a device somewhat resembling the mouthpiece of boxers and football players.

Dietary additives, such as bread and chewing gum laced with phosphate or other chemicals, designed to make teeth less prone to decay.

Super-strength steel originally developed for use in space rockets but now being tested as a possible improved and less expensive metal for use in dental bridges and other appliances.

And bone marrow grafts applied in conjunction with a temporarily inserted metal implant and designed to help false teeth wearers who can't tolerate their choppers because of loss of or receding bone ridges.

On the vaccine front, dental researchers of the Public Health Service and the Navy see possibilities of virtually eliminating tooth decay within the next decade.

Their hopes are based on relatively recent evidence strengthening theories that dental decay is an infectious, germ-caused disease—just like the common cold.

But even if their hopes are realized—through either an injectable of inhaled vaccine, or by means of a combined drug-and-dietary prophylaxis—that would still leave humans confronted with a more insidious and potentially more destructive dental villain: pyorrhea.

This gum and tooth-socket disease, responsible for so many toothless Americans, sneaks up on its victims without any warning of pain, as you'd get from a decayed tooth.

It doesn't attack the teeth themselves but affect the tissues, membranes and often the bones surrounding the teeth. Its earliest stages are characterized by a reddish inflammation of the ordinarily pink gum. The gums become more inflamed and pull away from the teeth, leaving pus-filled pockets between the gums and the teeth.

Next, the gums may ulcerate and bleed freely. And finally, the bone supporting the teeth is attacked and destroyed. Unless the patient receives treatment, the teeth loosen and eventually fall out.

The exact cause of this dental scourge, and the reason some people appear to avoid it naturally, are not yet known.

But its immediate cause is believed to be a special variety of plaque—a kind of "microbial mat" consisting of bacteria, food debris and other materials, that fastens onto everyone's teeth.

Ordinary plaque can be removed by thorough toothbrushing and other cleansing. But the kind of plaque linked with periodontal disease is a much tougher customer.

Called "calculus," or tartar, it's a crustlike material with the consistency of limestone.

Researchers are constantly looking for ways to prevent this form of plaque, such as with a vaccine. Prospects are not especially bright for this reason:

Whereas dental decay is believed triggered by a relative few bacteria pyorrhea is believed by at least some researchers to be the handiwork of a huge brigade of different ones literally waging gang warfare on the gums.

Dear Abby:

Who Changes Bedrooms?

DEAR ABBY: Eugene and I have been happily married for 26 years, but like everyone else, I have a problem. His snoring!

I don't know whether he's snoring louder lately, or if my tolerance is wearing thin, but it's gotten so bad I can't get a decent night's sleep—especially if Eugene has had a few drinks during the evening, then he snores like a mountain lion!

I have asked him gently to please stop snoring, nudged him, and rolled him over, which helps temporarily, then he starts in again.

Last night it was so bad, I woke him up and asked him to please go sleep in the spare room. He went, but he was very angry. The next morning we had a few words about it.

Eugene said I was very selfish for waking him up and asking HIM to go to the other room. He said that since he was sleeping soundly, and I was up, I should have gone to the spare room to sleep. I say that since HE was creating the disturbance, HE should have gone.

What do you say?

PAM

DEAR PAM: I say Eugene was right.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged housewife with two teenage children who make the honor roll regularly. I keep a nine-room house clean, but not immaculate. I sew all my own clothes and my daughter's, too. (I've even taught her to sew.)

My children and I attend church regularly, and we have a host of friends whom I feel think well of us.

My husband, who is an only child, is hard-working, capable and provides adequately. He is also well-liked. These are the assets. Now here are a few of the liabilities:

I am about five pounds overweight. I am graying in the temples. I have only a high school education. I dislike my mother-in-law intensely because she makes me feel dumb, dirty and inferior. Now, tell me, how can you like someone who makes you feel dumb, dirty and inferior?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your first two "liabilities" strike me as being somewhat trivial. (It's no big deal to get rid of five pounds and a few gray hairs.)

And if your limited education is causing you to feel "dumb," you can become better informed by reading. Forget about your mother-in-law. No one can make you feel "dumb, dirty, and inferior" unless you think you might deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: So many people have written to you to complain because they sent a gift "six months ago" and they didn't receive a thank-you for it.

Why don't these people call up (or write) to the person they sent it to and find out if the gift was ever received? (If they did get it and were slow in sending a "thank you," they deserve to be embarrassed.)

There is always a chance that the gift was not received. I work in the department of the post office where packages are undeliverable because the address has "fallen" off, or become smudged and cannot be read. And there is no return address on the package. Also, when a package is returned to the store because it cannot be delivered, the card will read, "From Uncle Ted and Aunt Mary," and the store has no way of knowing WHO bought it.

Please tell readers to put their full names and address INSIDE every gift, and not to sit around for 6 months wondering if the gift they sent ever got there.

U.S. Drivers Are Safer, NSC Reports

CHICAGO (AP) — There are more cars and more drivers on U.S. highways than there were a year ago but the highway fatality rate for the first five months of 1970 decreased to 20,500 from 20,860 for the same period of last year.

"It's not enough to say merely that this year's drivers are more careful," said Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council.

"We have to examine the entire road, vehicle and driver situation. For instance, we know there is a much lower death rate on the limited access, safety-engineered interstate highway system.

"Automobiles built today are safer in many ways than the cars they are gradually replacing. Motorists are being required by law to drive more responsibly as illustrated by efforts to get drinking drivers and other unqualified persons off the road."

Pyle said if the rate of fatalities for the first five months continues, "we can hope to experience several hundred fewer traffic deaths than last year. This may happen in spite of the fact that there are at least two million more motor vehicles and about two million more licensed drivers on the roads today."

The 1969 highway toll was 56,400 lives.

The Garden Corner
Naturalistic Landscaping
Featured At Walker Home

The grounds around the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Walker, Oak Park, are groomed to perfection and yet maintain the look of the handiwork of mother nature. Mr. Walker planned and executed the project himself and is now in the process of building a patio.

Large trees, shrubs and a few flowers form a perfect setting on the spacious front lawn for the Walker home. The path and steps at the east side are lined with ferns and small trees.

At the rear of the house on the west side is a fish pond constructed from large and small stones. Water runs down the stones at the corner as a spring in a forest glen. Flat stones form terraces on the sloping yard and a wooden bridge crosses a small stream.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker purchased the lot behind where their home is built to keep it

Heavy Rain Hits Ohio And Michigan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear and pleasant summer weather warmed wide areas of the nation today, marred by only a scattering of showers in the West and in parts of the Southeast.

Thundershowers ranged from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes late Wednesday, but the activity tapered off in the pre-dawn hours. One to 2 inches of rain soaked a large part of Ohio. More than 2 inches drenched Cincinnati.

High winds and hail accompanied the storms in sections of Ohio and Michigan. Gusts near 60 miles an hour buffeted an area near Columbus.

Showers over the intermountain region of the West were locally heavy in portions of Colorado, where Alamosa received more than an inch.

Slight cooling seeped into the Pacific Northwest, but high temperatures dominated most interior areas of the West. The mercury bounded well into the 90s, or higher, again Wednesday from Arizona and New Mexico to eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Temperatures before daybreak ranged from 50 at Arcata, Calif., to 90 at Dallas, Tex.

Medic Raps FDA Rules On Methadone

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A pioneer in the use of methadone to treat heroin addict charges that proposed federal regulations governing community methadone programs contain key provisions that are unreasonable and unworkable.

Dr. Vincent P. Dole of Rockefeller University said the proposed regulations were put together by the government "with essentially no consultation with knowledgeable people in the field."

Dr. Dole's charges, made in an interview, mark the newest controversy in the stormy history of methadone, a narcotic being used increasingly in many community programs across the nation to help hard-core drug addicts kick the habit.

In a methadone program, the addict is given a dose of methadone each day. Because it is a narcotic, and is itself addictive, the patient remains addicted, but he does not get "high" because methadone is given orally rather than injected.

Although he is giving up heroin, the addict does not suffer withdrawal symptoms because of the methadone. In addition, the methadone blocks the effects of any heroin the addict might take furtively, preventing him from getting a heroin "high."

All this, the argument runs, allows the addict to break the heroin habit, eliminates the need for criminal activity to pay for the expensive habit while leaving him capable of rehabilitation, working or going to school.

Dr. Dole, with Dr. Marie Nyswander, his wife, began the use of methadone at Rockefeller University in 1964. The most recent evaluation, involving 2,862 patients, was that the program is a success and should be continued and expanded.

Some critics, however, noting that the addict remains on methadone indefinitely, argue that one narcotic is merely being substituted for another. Others say those chosen for the program are so carefully screened, and so highly motivated, that it would be hard not to succeed. Despite criticism, methadone use is spreading, and on last June 11 the federal government moved to regulate its use as well as "facilitate controlled scientific research."

The FDA said at the time that "interested parties" had 30 days to submit comments. The 30-day period is up Saturday, when the proposals normally would go into effect, the FDA said.

But an FDA spokesman conceded Wednesday that there has been "substantial objection by a number of parties," and that a decision is pending on whether to hold public hearings.

The proposed regulations, Dr. Dole said, exclude from methadone programs anyone who is pregnant, or who has a psychosis, a serious physical disease or who is under 18. Instead, the regulations say, these people should be hospitalized and withdrawn from narcotics. "This is unworkable," Dr. Dole said.

Using methadone, he argued, it is now possible to reach persons who are psychotic or who have for instance, tuberculosis and who are hard-core heroin users. "Before," he said, "they would be running off all the time without taking their medicine for tuberculosis."

Further, he continued, if you take a pregnant woman off methadone, she'll go back to heroin. For the last three years, he said, many women in his program have had normal pregnancies and deliveries while on methadone.

The regulation also would require "a very elaborate series of medical and laboratory tests" before putting an addict on the program, Dr. Dole said. "To deny a smaller hospital, which is unable to carry out a full range of tests, from performing the treatment is unreasonable."

2 More Ohioans Killed In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Capt. William A. Justice of Fairborn, Ohio, has been killed in action in Southeast Asia, the Defense Department reported Wednesday.

Army Pfc. Walter M. Puchalski of Cleveland was listed as having died not as a result of hostile action.

Health experts stress that methadone treatment is not suitable for use by the private practitioner in his office, because the program requires many supporting services, such as psychiatric supervision and other counseling.

Methadone, an addictive drug similar to morphine, can be used legally only with a prescription and was originally intended as a pain killer. It also can be used to suppress coughing and, in some cases, to treat drug withdrawal symptoms.

Dr. Dole estimates that about 8,000 persons in the United States are undergoing methadone treatment in about two dozen major programs and several less formal efforts.

At Pittsburgh's Western Psychiatric Hospital, Counselor Bob Lloyd said, "There are a lot of people who say methadone is just a different kind of addiction. Maybe it is, but I'll tell you this: These people are leading normal, productive lives and I doubt if some of them could do it in any other way."

Dr. Barry Ramer, the director of the Center for Special Problems, an agency of the San Francisco Public Health Department, estimated the average cost of one dose of methadone at four cents. "That's inexpensive in exchange for a $150-a-day habit," he said.

The Fourth passed with a bang and now for the next coming weeks will be Homecomings, fishing trips and fairs. We hope every one has a happy vacation.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton policeman and two other men were arrested by FBI agents Wednesday on charges stemming from a federal investigation of an alleged interstate white slavery ring.

Local police sources said more arrests could follow. Patrolman Louis E. Leonard, 27, Gene Taylor, 25, and William R. Wax, 28, were accused in federal grand jury indictments returned Tuesday of a total of 46 violations of federal law, including prostitution and extortion. The three men, all suburban Kettering residents, were released on bond and ordered to appear in federal court next Tuesday for arraignment. U. S. Atty. Robert Steinberg said two secret indictments were returned with Taylor and Wax named in both of them and Leonard in one. He said the FBI probe has been under way since last fall but declined to say what prompted it. The indictment in which all three men are named reportedly charges them with conspiracy to commit a crime and five counts of racketeering through extortion. The other indictment accuses Taylor and Wax of employing five girls for prostitution and other immoral purposes since Feb. 1, 1969. The indictment says the two took the girls across state lines. Taylor is charged with 22 counts, Wax 20 and Leonard 16 in the two indictments. Most of the counts result from alleged use of mails, telephones and interstate transportation to commit illegal acts. Dayton City Manager James E. Kunde said the police department is preparing charges against Leonard, who has been on the force for three years but is not assigned to duty now. Leonard has been assigned primarily to patrol functions, but was temporarily on duty with the vice squad for one year. Although Taylor never has been convicted of a crime, he has outstanding against him charges of carrying a concealed weapon, breaking and entering and violation of the federal firearms law. Wax is on probation for a Jan. 30 federal conviction of interstate transportation of obscene matter and also has a forgery charge outstanding.

Views On TV - Radio

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Lloyd Bridges almost blushed when I reminded him of the time 25 years ago when he played a secret agent in the movie serials.

He laughed and his heavy brows almost hid his small, deep blue eyes, and tiny crinkles radiated across his sun-redened face. It was hard to tell if he added any extra color.

I told him that his name had stuck in my mind since seeing that serial as a child. He shook his head ruefully and said, "I'd hoped everyone had forgotten that one. We did 13 episodes in about 30 days. That was the most confusing thing I ever did. We'd be in one spot and we'd do scenes for four or five different episodes at a time."

After a sluggish period during which he played a succession of gun slingers and psychotic killers in the movies, Bridges is now one of the actors most in demand for television movies.

He made three TV movies last season, including "Silent Night, Lonely Night," and will be back in at least three this year. In addition, he is getting ready to star in his fourth television series.

"San Francisco International," in which Bridges plays an airport manager, will be a part of the "Four in One" series on NBC Wednesday nights.

Asked to describe the role, he answered: "It's a kind of Burt Lancaster part." He burst out laughing, possibly at the thought of touching a sensitive nerve at Universal Studios. Lancaster plays a manager in "Airport," also produced by Universal.

He added, "He indulges in Truck Driver Faces Vehicular Homicide Charge

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Connersville, Ind., truck driver has been charged with vehicular homicide in the death of an Akron, Ohio, woman in a collision on U. S. 27 near here Wednesday.

The Hamilton County Sheriff's office lodged the charge against Earl Hudson, 31, in the death of Charlotte Ballis, 72.

She and three Waverly, Ohio, residents were riding in their car which was hit as the trailer of Hudson's tractor-trailer rig went left of center, sheriff's deputies said.

Danny Shaver, 31, Mrs. Ballis' grandson and Gina James and her brother, Frank, both 15; were hurt but not seriously. They live at the same address in Waverly.

Fred Morr Receives Izaak Walton Award
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The national honor roll award of the Izaak Walton League was presented Wednesday to Ohio Natural Resources Director Fred E. Morr.

The award, presented to Morr during the league's convention here, cited him for implementation of a statewide water development plan and increasing state outdoor recreation facilities.

things like business and sex. He has an 18-year-old daughter. We talked about having a 16-year-old daughter and my own daughter, Cindy, could play it. They decided she should be a little older and could have her own pad and more effectively represent a youthful viewpoint."

Bridges said he is not encouraging Cindy to take up acting, as he did his sons Beau and Jeff. "It's hard for an actress to be happy. Too many lose their femininity."

Beau shot to stardom quickly in "Gaily, Gaily" and "The Landlord," and Jeff is just back from filming "The Yen and the Yang."

Bridges, who did not achieve real success until he was in his 40s, said, "I always hoped I'd be in a position where I could do the kind of parts I wanted. I'm not in that position yet, but I've done some good parts."

He probably is best remembered for "Sea Hunt," a hit series in the 1950s.

"San Francisco International" will be seen first as a World Premiere movie, then will run for six episodes on "Four in One." Clu Gulager, a former regular on "The Virginian," will play the airport's head of security.

Sealed proposals will be received

Views On TV - Radio

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Lloyd Bridges almost blushed when I reminded him of the time 25 years ago when he played a secret agent in the movie serials. He laughed and his heavy brows almost hid his small, deep blue eyes, and tiny crinkles radiated across his sun-redened face. It was hard to tell if he added any extra color.

I told him that his name had stuck in my mind since seeing that serial as a child. He shook his head ruefully and said, "I'd hoped everyone had forgotten that one. We did 13 episodes in about 30 days. That was the most confusing thing I ever did. We'd be in one spot and we'd do scenes for four or five different episodes at a time."

After a sluggish period during which he played a succession of gun slingers and psychotic killers in the movies, Bridges is now one of the actors most in demand for television movies.

He made three TV movies last season, including "Silent Night, Lonely Night," and will be back in at least three this year. In addition, he is getting ready to star in his fourth television series.

"San Francisco International," in which Bridges plays an airport manager, will be a part of the "Four in One" series on NBC Wednesday nights.

Asked to describe the role, he answered: "It's a kind of Burt Lancaster part." He burst out laughing, possibly at the thought of touching a sensitive nerve at Universal Studios. Lancaster plays a manager in "Airport," also produced by Universal.

He added, "He indulges in

Truck Driver Faces Vehicular Homicide Charge

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Connersville, Ind., truck driver has been charged with vehicular homicide in the death of an Akron, Ohio, woman in a collision on U. S. 27 near here Wednesday.

The Hamilton County Sheriff's office lodged the charge against Earl Hudson, 31, in the death of Charlotte Ballis, 72.

She and three Waverly, Ohio, residents were riding in their car which was hit as the trailer of Hudson's tractor-trailer rig went left of center, sheriff's deputies said.

Danny Shaver, 31, Mrs. Ballis' grandson and Gina James and her brother, Frank, both 15, were hurt but not seriously. They live at the same address in Waverly.

Fred Morr Receives Izaak Walton Award
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The national honor roll award of the Izaak Walton League was presented Wednesday to Ohio Natural Resources Director Fred E. Morr.

The award, presented to Morr during the league's convention here, cited him for implementation of a statewide water development plan and increasing state outdoor recreation facilities.

things like business and sex. He has an 18-year-old daughter. We talked about having a 16-year-old daughter and my own daughter, Cindy, could play it. They decided she should be a little older and could have her own pad and more effectively represent a youthful viewpoint."

Bridges said he is not encouraging Cindy to take up acting, as he did his sons Beau and Jeff. "It's hard for an actress to be happy. Too many lose their femininity."

Beau shot to stardom quickly in "Gaily, Gaily" and "The Landlord," and Jeff is just back from filming "The Yen and the Yang."

Bridges, who did not achieve real success until he was in his 40s, said, "I always hoped I'd be in a position where I could do the kind of parts I wanted. I'm not in that position yet, but I've done some good parts."

He probably is best remembered for "Sea Hunt," a hit series in the 1950s.

"San Francisco International" will be seen first as a World Premiere movie, then will run for six episodes on "Four in One." Clu Gulager, a former regular on "The Virginian," will play the airport's head of security.

Rochester Defeats Richmond Braves, 6-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Rochester Red Wings are making a run for first place in the International League standings, but first-place Syracuse keeps hanging up there, three games away.

The Red Wings took their third in a row from the hapless Richmond Braves Wednesday, on the strength of Jim Schaffer's 340-foot, two-run homer in the 10th inning.

The blast lifted the Wings over the Braves by a 6-4 score, but Syracuse at the time was clipping Tidewater 7-3.

Hart, Giants Bomb Atlanta Braves, 13-0

By BEN THOMAS

Associated Press Sports Writer Attention National League pitchers! Jim Ray Hart's back from the minors and the once feared hitting star is again wielding a big bat.

Hart, recalled from Phoenix earlier in the week when Jim Davenport retired, staged a slightly delayed celebration Wednesday night by driving in six runs in one inning to equal a 59-year-old National League record as the San Francisco Giants bombed the Atlanta Braves 13-0.

Troubled most of last year by a shoulder injury, Hart was shipped to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League by the Giants during spring training. He appeared in a San Francisco uniform for the first time in the 1970 campaign Tuesday night and was hitless in four appearances. He more than made up for it Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets opened up a 1 1/2-game East Division lead over Pittsburgh by beating St. Louis 7-5 as the Pirates fell 2-0 to Philadelphia; San Diego defeated Cincinnati 3-1, Los Angeles edged Houston 6-5 and the Chicago Cubs split a twin bill with Montreal, winning the first game 5-1 and dropping the nightcap 5-4.

"It's great to be back," chorled Hart after his Wednesday night performance, which included a single, double, triple, and home run in five at bats.

"Six RBI — that's a week's work in one inning," said Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron and Luman Harris, the Braves' manager, added: "You mean the record he tied was set in 1911? It's hard to believe that anyone could get six RBIs in one inning with the dead ball they played with back then."

The NL inning record for RBI was set May 13, 1911, by Fred C. Merkle of the old New York Giants. The major league record is seven, by Edward Cart wright of St. Louis in 1890 when the second loop was known as the American Association.

Since the formation of the American League in 1901, six players have driven in six runs in a single inning. Hart is only the second NL player to achieve the feat.

Hart had seven RBI for the evening. He had an RBI single in the third and his six RBI featured the Giants' 11-run fifth. He homered with two on in his first trip to the plate in the inning and when he came back up again later in the inning he smashed a bases-loaded triple.

The Mets, in beating the Cards, racked up their sixth straight victory, longest winning streak for the defending world champs this season. Rookie Ken Singleton's third-inning homer with two on put the Mets out front to stay after St. Louis had gone ahead 3-0. Carl Taylor homered for the Cards.

Deron Johnson's ninth-inning homer with one on broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Philadelphia's Rick Wise and Pittsburgh's Steve Blass. It was Johnson's 16th clout of the season and the fourth off Blass. Wise also yielded four hits.

Cincinnati's four-game victory skinned was snapped by the Padres but the Reds still maintain an 8 1/2-game West Division lead. San Diego's runs all came in the third with Clarence Gaston and Ollie Brown hitting run scoring singles and Steve Hunt scoring on a Cincinnati error.

The Dodgers exploded for five runs in the ninth to beat Atlanta with Maury Wills' pinch double driving in a pair. The Cubs' first-game victory over Montreal was highlighted by two-run homers by Ron Santo and Billy Williams.

John Bocabella's pinch single drove in two runs in the eighth to give the Expos the nightcap triumph.

Pony Pull Set

The Southern Ohio Pony Pullers Association will hold a pony pull 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds. Events are scheduled in the 46 inch and 50 inch classes.

Rains Stop British Open; Jacklin Ponders Strategy

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Associated Press Sports Writer ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, (AP) — Tony Jacklin got up to-day thinking about a bush standing between him, a new record, and perhaps another million dollars in the harvest that champion golfers now reap.

"That's where my ball was, behind a bush off the tee on the 14th hole Wednesday when the rains came," the 26-year-old holder of both British and American Open titles said.

"Now I have to decide what to do," Jacklin and a couple of dozen top golfers were caught out Wednesday toward the end of the first round of the 1970 British Open when St. Andrews suddenly turned from a pussycat into a tiger.

A twilight rainstorm stopped

Those on the course were allowed to mark their balls and pursue the end of their first rounds today. The Royal and Ancient decided that Jacklin, who made the comment himself, was right in saying that nobody plays golf when lightning is around and he has to swing the most awful of lightning conductors, an iron.

The decision was miraculous for Jacklin. He had just shot a record-equaling 29 on the first nine, birdied the 10th and was eight under par at the 14th tee when he hit his tee shot.

Straight pars in from there would be a 64, never before seen on the Old Course.

"That was the best nine I ever played," the sparky-eyed Englishman said. "I'll always remember it. When play stopped my ball was under a bush. I'll have to consider that business before I decide how to play. It certainly is an interesting thought to go to bed with."

The remarkable freshet came after a dozen of the world's best golfers benefitted from perfect conditions to shatter St. Andrews' 6,951-yard, par-72 links into submission.

Tommy Horton of England did it first with a record-equaling 66, then his countryman Neil Coles set up a new one with a 65.

Stretched out behind, but certainly in contention were such greats as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Doug Sanders and Peter Thomson on 68.

In between were unexpected challengers like Florentino Molena of Argentina, Harold Henning of South Africa, and England's John Richardson and Maurice Bembridge on 67.

Weaver Chooses 9 Starters For All-Star Contest Tuesday

BOSTON (AP) — No apologies were absolutely necessary, but Manager Earl Weaver felt one was owed American League relief stars after picking a staff of nine full-fledged starters for the All-Star Game with the National League next Tuesday night at Cincinnati.

Weaver, who managed the Baltimore Orioles to the pennant in 1969, explained his decision Wednesday as the staff was announced by league President Joe Cronin.

He said he did not name any relievers because "if we selected one, there would be five or six that are qualified to be placed in the same category."

He cited Eddie Watt and Pete Richert of the Orioles, Ron Perzanowski of the Minnesota Twins, Darrold Knowles of Washington, Ken Tatum of California and Lindy McDaniel and Jack Aker of New York.

Knowing what those relievers can do, Weaver said, "made me realize that an All-Star staff of completely relievers could be picked."

"Consequently," he added, "I made up my mind that the staff would consist of starters whose records taken away from their respective clubs would lower the clubs considerably in the standings."

Weaver surprised many observers by picking his three top stars — southpaws Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar and right-hander Jim Palmer. He also tabbed Fritz Peterson and Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees, Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Jim Hunter of Oakland, Clyde Wright of the Angels and Jim Perry of the Twins.

The staff has five left-handers and four righties, with an overall record of 100-47 this season when chosen. Peterson, McDowell and Wright are the other southpaws with McNally and Cuellar.

Although he has an extra southpaw, Weaver probably will start a right-hander if he decides to go with the percentage. The National League's starting line-up has only one left-handed batter, switch-hitting Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs.

commanders in action recently. The 1st Division is better armed and equipped by the U.S. Military Assistance Command than it used to be. The divisional artillery includes American 105mm and 155mm howitzers. There are helicopter gunships and A37 jet fighter bombers to back up the infantry, with Vietnamese pilots.

The 1st Division's American tanks are M41 Walker Bulldogs, a generation old in design with gasoline engines as a glaring weakness. The Vietnamese pass the word openly to visitors that they would like to have heavier armor, larger guns, and diesel power.

The division's supply units have plenty of American-made trucks and Jeeps at last, with Vietnamese drivers and maintenance. There's no more clogging of trucks from U.S. forces.

When a division fire base comes under enemy shelling, the reaction is a Vietnamization of the American technique. Artillery battalions thunder into action. Dive bombers are called in. Even B52s blast the enemy's suspected locations.

The Vietnamese command listens to American advice but makes up its own mind. I was offered "Geronimo," a fire base which the Americans had regarded as a first-class strong-point, when they built and held it.

But the Vietnamese thought "Geronimo," on a low foothill, was tactically inferior in its location. They carved out a new fire base, "T Bone," on the highest peak in the area.

On this northernmost front of the war in South Vietnam, two-thirds of the countryside is free-fire zone and depopulated. In a narrow strip along the coast, refugee settlements are concentrated. A generation ago, The French army referred to it as "Street Without Joy."

In the foothills, the American-made plows cut off patches of woods at four inches above ground to deny cover to any guerrillas. Tank columns slash cross-country on daily patrols.

Farther inland, the highland camp of Khe Sanh is deserted. The U.S. Marines evacuated it in July 1968, and nobody has gone back. It had been defended by the heaviest bombing in the history of the war—96,000 tons of explosives.

The 1st Division is not in a hurry to reoccupy Khe Sanh. It has enough slugging matches already on the northern front.

No officer we've met in the 1st Division speaks of any early end to the war. A general said: "The Communists continue 10 years. I continue 10 years plus 1."

City GE Plant To Shutdown For Vacation

General Electric's Circleville Lamp Plant will begin its annual vacation shutdown period on Mon., July 13 according to an announcement made today by E. G. Grigg, plant manager. The plant will be closed for three weeks, the three weeks beginning July 13, July 20 and July 27. Production will resume on Mon. Aug. 3. "The three week shutdown period is in large part attributable to the significant number of employees who have earned paid vacations of three weeks," said Grigg. Previous to 1963, the plant closed for two weeks.

Except for a limited number of personnel who will be in the plant during the shutdown period all other employees will have three weeks off at this time. The nature of the lamp business — making lamps in advance of need — permits summertime cessation of all manufacturing when employees turn their attention to such things as fishing, fixing up the house or traveling.

Guard Riot Training Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — National guardsmen trained to control riots must be persuaded that they are not there simply to mow people down like sheep," Sen. Peter H. Dominick has told the head of the Army's Office of Reserve Components. In testimony published Wednesday, Lt. Gen. William R. Peers was asked by the Colorado Republican senator, during a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing May 7: "Are we doing anything on that?"

"I would be sure that action is being taken along that line," Peers replied. "I don't know specifically what is being done with respect to the Ohio State National Guard, but there is just no question," he added, that the deaths of four students in a confrontation May 4 with guardsmen at Kent State University "was a most regrettable incident and it could not have happened, in my view, at a more unfortunate time."

commanders in action recently. The 1st Division is better armed and equipped by the U.S. Military Assistance Command than it used to be. The divisional artillery includes American 105mm and 155mm howitzers. There are helicopter gunships and A37 jet fighter bombers to back up the infantry, with Vietnamese pilots.

The 1st Division's American tanks are M41 Walker Bulldogs, a generation old in design with gasoline engines as a glaring weakness. The Vietnamese pass the word openly to visitors that they would like to have heavier armor, larger guns, and diesel power.

The division's supply units have plenty of American-made trucks and Jeeps at last, with Vietnamese drivers and maintenance. There's no more clogging of trucks from U.S. forces.

When a division fire base comes under enemy shelling, the reaction is a Vietnamization of the American technique. Artillery battalions thunder into action. Dive bombers are called in. Even B52s blast the enemy's suspected locations.

The Vietnamese command listens to American advice but makes up its own mind. I was offered "Geronimo," a fire base which the Americans had regarded as a first-class strong point, when they built and held it.

But the Vietnamese thought "Geronimo," on a low foothill, was tactically inferior in its location. They carved out a new fire base, "T-Bone," on the highest peak in the area.

On this northernmost front of the war in South Vietnam, two-thirds of the countryside is free-fire zone and depopulated. In a narrow strip along the coast, refugee settlements are concentrated. A generation ago, The French army referred to it as "Street Without Joy."

In the foothills, the American-made plows cut off patches of woods at four inches above ground to deny cover to any guerrillas. Tank columns slash cross-country on daily patrols.

Farther inland, the highland camp of Khe Sanh is deserted. The U.S. Marines evacuated it in July 1968, and nobody has gone back. It had been defended by the heaviest bombing in the history of the war—96,000 tons of explosives.

The 1st Division is not in a hurry to reoccupy Khe Sanh. It has enough slugging matches already on the northern front.

No officer we've met in the 1st Division speaks of any early end to the war. A general said: "The Communists continue 10 years. I continue 10 years plus 1."

City GE Plant To Shutdown For Vacation

General Electric's Circleville Lamp Plant will begin its annual vacation shutdown period on Mon., July 13 according to an announcement made today by E. G. Grigg, plant manager.

The plant will be closed for three weeks, the three weeks beginning July 13, July 20 and July 27. Production will resume on Mon. Aug. 3. "The three week shutdown period is in large part attributable to the significant number of employees who have earned paid vacations of three weeks," said Grigg. Previous to 1963, the plant closed for two weeks.

Except for a limited number of personnel who will be in the plant during the shutdown period all other employees will have three weeks off at this time. The nature of the lamp business — making lamps in advance of need — permits summertime cessation of all manufacturing when employees turn their attention to such things as fishing, fixing up the house or traveling.

Guard Riot Training Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — National guardsmen trained to control riots must be persuaded that they are not there simply to mow people down like sheep," Sen. Peter H. Dominick has told the head of the Army's Office of Reserve Components.

In testimony published Wednesday, Lt. Gen. William R. Peers was asked by the Colorado Republican senator, during a Senate, Armed Services Committee hearing May 7: "Are we doing anything on that?"

"I would be sure that action is being taken along that line," Peers replied.

"I don't know specifically what is being done with respect to the Ohio State National Guard, but there is just no question," he added, that the deaths of four students in a confrontation May 4 with guardsmen at Kent State University "was a most regrettable incident and it could not have happened, in my view, at a more unfortunate time."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., questioned Peers on whether he feels ammunition should be issued to guardsmen called out to control riots.

Peers responded that he thinks "every soldier should have ammunition with him or have it immediately available for issue to the unit."

Thurmond: "Anyone regrets violence and anyone regrets injury to any person, I am sure, but if the purpose of calling out the troops is to maintain law and order, doesn't the soldier have to have the authority to protect himself and also to maintain that law and order?"

Peers: "Yes, sir."
"The Army Reserve as well as the Army National Guard," Thurmond said, "should have special training."

"They certainly shouldn't be trigger happy," he added. "On the other hand, when they are attacked and they are about to be killed, what else can they do but protect themselves."

Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, told Dominick every report of snipers and gunfire in the Kent incident prior to the National Guard firing was unconfirmed but under investigation.

Wilson told the committee guardsmen had live ammunition because "Ohio elects to load and lock weapons before commitment."

He added that the weapon is fired when authorized by a responsible officer unless the guardsmen is fired on or his life is otherwise in danger. He said among the unconfirmed reports being checked out by authorities was that Kent city and campus police had established a sniper was on the roof of Johnson Hall of Silver Oak Apartments and was shooting at guardsmen.

He also said it was reported a girl dashed out and fired a weapon at the guardsmen as they turned away, then they turned back and returned fire.
